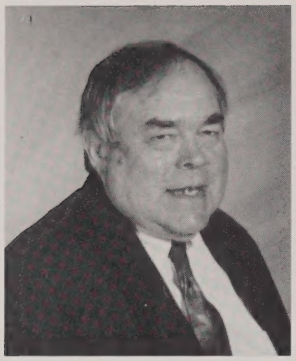
The Woodward Rock stands in front of our historic school building. As can be seen from the inscription, WE are the centennial class and we are proud to be part of this auspicious occasion.

DEDICATION

When we entered your world in the year of 1990 as a group of young girls, we did not know what to expect. We knew hard work would be the main part of our lives and even though we dreaded it, we can now see that hard work does pay off. Although some of us struggled with vocab quizzes and essays and insisted you were doing it just to torture us, we began to accept them and now, four years later, vocab and essays are considered an everyday part of our lives. We know that to you it may have seemed for sometime that when you were speaking to us no one was listening. Mrs. Poole, through each discussion we learned more about ourselves and how much you wanted us to succeed as young women. You have taught us so much and without your love and patience to guide us through our four years, we would have been totally lost. We leave, now no longer as young girls, but as young women. We want you to know that we love you a lot and even though we cannot take you to college with us, each of us will always carry a memory of you in our hearts.

IT WAS THE BEST OF TIMES, IT WAS THE WORST OF TIMES

Administration



To The Class of 1994:

Although you are not the one hundredth class to graduate from The Woodward School you are indeed The Centennial Class. The Woodward School has survived for one hundred years in the business of educating young women. Most of you have survived at least thirteen years of elementary and secondary education, with several more college years ahead.

Both Woodward and your class have always known that there is something special about single sex education. However, it has been only recently that research has justified the existence of women's secondary schools as well as women's' Colleges. And our society ought to move in our direction.

Every graduating class has its own unique characteristics. This class is no exception. You represent a pleasing combination of academic excellence, athletic competitiveness, quiet determination, social aptitude and skilled leadership. Your gifts are what this nation and our world sorely needs.

Your challenge is to take your gifts and share them within the global village. The needs of our world are waiting for your contributions. We anticipate your positive, generous response. We will respond with our gratitude.

Sincerely,

Robert L. Johnston

One of the greatest strengths of the Woodward School is the dedication and commitment of its faculty. As an integral part of the Woodward community the faculty strives to prepare young women for college and for productive roles in a changing society as concerned and active citizens.

A comprehensive curriculum which incorporates analytical and critical thinking skills, problem solving, collaborative learning and especially informed student participation helps Woodward women meet the challenges and deal with issues of our complex society, both locally and globally.

The Humanities Program includes a wide variety of courses in literature, foreign languages, history, and oral communications. The Science Program offers health and environmental studies as well as laboratory science. All students are involved in a structured and varied math program which includes math analysis and calculus. The arts also play an important role in the life of a well rounded Woodward student. Drama, music, and the fine arts are incorporated across the curriculum in various disciplines while concerts, art fairs, skits, plays, and debates are enthusiastically attended. Small classes help to create a caring environment which enhances individual attention. Opportunities exist within the classroom to promote the development of a student's capacity to exercise ethical judgments based on the strengthening of moral values. It is not uncommon for relationships to develop between faculty and students which last well beyond the student's years at Woodward.

The moral, academic, and social development of each young woman is a goal which is constantly promulgated by faculty and administration. In this, the Centennial Year, it is clearly evident that this dynamic ideal is still very much alive.

Thank god it's finally over! No more essays, Mrs. Poole. Thank you Mrs. Poole for making me work hard and always giving me another chance. Melanie, be nice to me, I know EVERYTHING. J.F., you'll always be the happiest person I know and good luck with Rob J.M. I promise I'll clean the Senior Room. Jill- No I don't have any cigarettes and no I have no money! Gail, you have a sick sense of humor. I LIKE YOU! N.D.- we've had good times and bad, let's remember the good. M.L., you're a donkey. -K.S., I'll always be Paul's favorite. Huh! Huh! C.V. -things always get worse before they get better. Hang in there. M.M. -you stuck beside me when I thought no one cared. The summer of "92" was hard, but we helped each other through it. Never forget- the wall, the school yard, our walks looking for anyone, C.L + Pretty = hairy and gross. Friends forever. I love you. D.B.- the first 2 weeks, our anniversary, the Fendi, the Yellow Bird, Shennen S. GREEN!, my baby, the cellar, the ring, the year 2000, G.H., your little girl, and D.D. I love you very much. Thanks for helping me be a big girl. Mom and Dad, thanks for believing in me even when I let you down. Mom, I'll always need you because I'm never going to grow up. Dad, you have made me so happy and you're the best father ANYONE could ever have. I love you both. Bye Woodward and thanks for the memories.

Initiation Day

Give us donuts or give us death

Do I feel a zit coming on?

Shake your tailfeather

The morning of October 29 was a dark one as the Seniors set off on their mission to kidnap their little sisters. The surprised Sixth graders were dragged to Woodward for breakfast in the Senior Room, and then were shipped off to their classes in their p.j.'s. This was only the beginning. Around noon, the girls were dressed up in various Halloween costumes, paraded around the school, and then marched through Quincy Center to Burger King. Although the Sixth graders were slightly embarrassed by this odd introduction to Woodward, it was a fun day for all.

Ya- we know we're cute.

There are generally tw periods built into the week for Glee Club students which allo time to learn music that frequently includes two or more differen parts.

National Honor Society

NHS Officers: President - Gail Lorandeau, Vice-President - Jessica MacDonald, Secretary/Treasurer - Molly McCormack

The Katherine Bacon Chapter of the National Honor Society continues to be an important part of the Woodward Community. Students with a grade point average of 86 or above are inducted to N.H.S. in their sophomore year. The induction ceremony takes place on Founder's Night. The National Honor Society organizes a tea for prospective members in the fall and a presentation on Founder's Night in the spring. Members set an example for other students and act as tutors on a regular basis for girls who need extra help.

Student Government

Student Government is a schoolwide organization with elected high school officers. Each grade has two representatives who attend a weekly Student Government meeting. Student Government provides a forum for students concerns. It also organizes a Thanksgiving Feast and help prepare classes for the Christmas celebration. Mrs. Hayes is the advisor for Student Government. All interested members of the Woodward Community are encouraged to attend meetings and voice their opinions.

Float Club

Traditionally, Woodward's Float Club creates award-winning floats for the Christmas Parade in Quincy, and this year was no exception. Intense work was done for two months, and the float was rewarded with second prize. This year was different because the inclement weather caused the parade to be canceled. The float succeeded in not letting it "rain on our parade" and made a great appearance. The theme of the float was an "Old-fashioned Christmas".

Ski Club

The Woodward School Ski Club is a program which allows any students interested to travel to areas outside of Massachusetts to ski. There are usually a couple of trips planned each year. This year the group went skiing in Canada for a long weekend over Winter Break. Skiers of all abilities are welcome. A great time is had by all.

Volleyball

With the loss of three senior starters, the team seemed to struggle in the beginning of the season, but soon gained strength and experience and had a respectable season. Under new coach Kim Lahr, the team worked on fundamentals such as serving and passing, and worked on some more intermediate drills. Players for the '93 season were Jaime Fraioli, Jessica MacDonald, and Kate Motroni, tri-captains, Eryne Flanagan, Sara Gordon, Jade Kwong, Michelle Custeau, and Amanda Daly. Unfortunately, Kate Motroni had to leave the school halfway through the season; her skills were greatly missed.

Cross-Country

The 1993 Cross Country Team, under Coach Andrea Geovanis had an exciting year. As the school's first Cross Country Team ever, our runners may have lacked experience but they were certainly not short on enthusiasm and dedication. The team was comprised of the following upper school students: Toli Reid, Faith Reimondi and Lena Pepgjonaj. Seventh graders Sandy White, Kellie Johnston, Monique Rodrigues, Lisa Pepgjonaj, Jackie O'Meara, Andrea Rose and Sixth grader Jessica Lynch all ran superbly for Woodward. The team had several meets against local schools at Pageant's Field. Students' performances at these meets can only suggest a promising future for Woodward's cross country program.

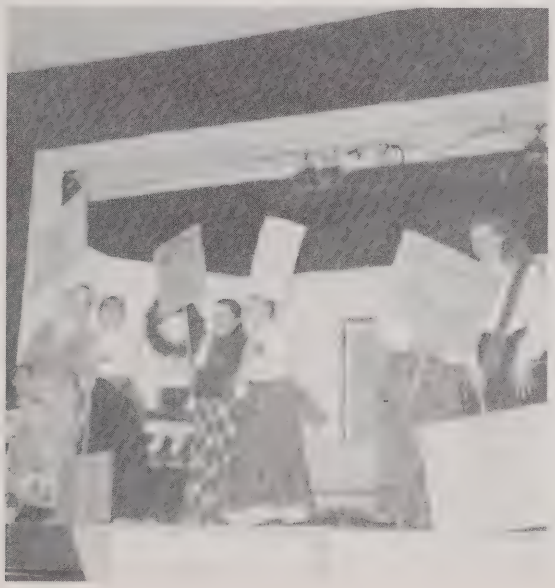
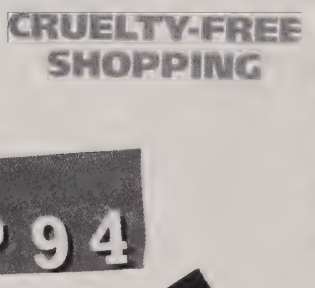
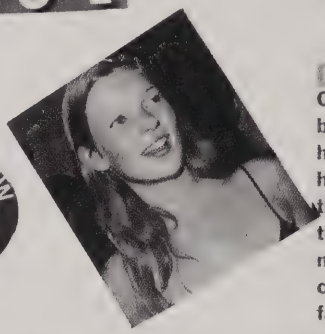
Thanksgiving

Every year the student government organizes a Thanksgiving Feast in which the entire school gathers, makes presentations before the school, and donates goods to a local charity. This year our charity was Rosie's Place, a homeless shelter for women. Heather Sullivan spoke on behalf of Rosie's Place, and Senator Michael Morrisey read the Thanksgiving Proclamation. All the work of preparation paid off and the celebration was a success.







RAVE

Organized on the fly (sometimes by electronic mail) and often held in warehouses, raves are huge, nomadic dance parties that tend to last all night, or until the police show up. Psychedelic mood enhancers and funny accessories (white cotton gloves, face masks) are optional.

Provincetown Trip

Woodward's annual Fall Field trip was a resounding success. On a beautiful autumn morning we boarded an excursion boat for Provincetown. We toured the town by trolley, climbed the Provincetown tower, shopped, ate lunch, and had time to socialize. Our return trip turned into a whale watch as we sighted two of the magnificent creatures off the bow of the boat. It was a great way to begin a new academic year.

Solstice

A yearly tradition at Woodward is the Winter Solstice. The entire student body gathers together just before Christmas break. During this program songs from various nationalities are sung and stories and poems are read. This gathering is an enjoyable experience for all which gives everyone an idea for what the holiday season is all about.

Prom 1993

There were times when we thought that a prom would never be. Finally on May 20, 1993, the junior class got together with the seniors and had the times of their lives. The prom took place at Amelia's Restaurant at Marina Bay. We had a sit-down dinner and we danced the night away on the great dance floor. Although there were people who didn't feel like dancing, they had a good time watching Jill Watts and Mr. McDonald out on the dance floor. Even though preparing for the prom was very hectic, the end result was worth it. Everyone was buzzing about it for weeks!

Class Will

I, Jaime Fraioli, leave my happy friendly personality to anyone who needs it.

I, Gail Lorandeau, leave my common sense to anyone who needs it.

I, Nicole DiGiusto, leave my Citation with its pumping system in case anyone wants to be seen in style (Jill you can have the AM radio.)

I, Jessica MacDonald, leave my forever lost calculator to whoever can find it and my Potty Training hat to whoever wants it.

I. Hyeyeun Kim had a great time in this small school. I'll never forget nice senior class friends and I'm gonna miss everything in here.

I, Melanie Morano, leave my great Algebra skills to anyone who thinks they can ACE Algebra.

I, Melissa Meceli, leave my frequent mood swings.

I, Jill Watts, leave my dancing skills to anyone who needs them.

I, Jessica Barry, leave my great sense of humor to the Algebra 2 class because you're going to need it.

To the class of 1995, we leave a tri-color senior room and transformer sheets.

To the class of 1996, we leave a worry-free semi.

To the class of 1997, we leave a student government meeting with no issues.

To the class of 1998, we leave four years of grades that count.

To the class of 1999, we leave a barnyard for all their animals.

To the class of 2000, we leave a quick six years until senior privileges.

Class Will To Teachers

To Ms. Alpert - a computer game featuring Taffy the wonder dog.

To Mrs. Costagliola - an apron equipped with a hidden squirtgun to attack those in debt.

To Mr. Flanagan - a book of possible cocktail party topics other than Anthropology.

To Miss Geovanis - we leave a gym class who can pronounce her last name.

To Mrs. Hayes - Richard Nixon's head on a stick.

To Mrs. Holliday - a whip that will reach even the students in the back of the IPS class.

To Mr. Johnston - we just leave.

To Mr. McDonald - his own theater with a permanent stage at which he can have DEAR anytime he wants.

To Mrs. McLaughlin - a brand new sixth grade and an easier commute.

To Mrs. Millis - an accountant and a warmer office.

To Mr. Pickel - a long-range missile launcher to ruin the DEAR bell on Fridays.

To Mrs. Poole - a trip to her choice of fictitious cities with all of our love.

To Mrs. Praetsch - we leave a bullhorn to announce tardies and loss of Senior privileges.

To Ms. Saluti - we leave the lead role, Dolsinea, in the play "El Hidalgo de la Mancha."

To Ms. Salvetti - an engagement ring.

To Mrs. Segadelli - we leave an office in an even more inconspicuous place.

To Mrs. Silverman - a personal interest program for unpaid loans.

To Mr. Stevens - a last name.

To Mrs. Taylor - we leeve good spellors.

To Mr. Thomas - his very own herd of sheep.

To Mrs. Zimmerman - serious responses to questions.

Prophecy

The meeting place for the tenth reunion of the 100th graduating class of the Woodward School is set to be in the l hotel at 1102 Hancock Street, situated on the same lot that the Woodward School used to be situated upon. It was th until June of 1994 when Jessica MacDonald and Gail Lorandeau, giving into their pyromaniacal tendencies, accident lit some fermented coffee on fire and set the Senior Room ablaze. It eventually spread to the Boiler Room, and one sp in there was the end of the delapitated building. The school moved its campus to Thayer Academy's former cam when Thayer's student body took a sharp decline due to the high enrollment at Woodward.

The time is 11:00 am, and Jessica Barry is the first to arrive, fresh off her 8pm-10:30 am shift at the Barry-Bullens nut Chain, which recently bought out Dunkin' Donuts. She arrives carrying her Fendi suitcase, carry-on bag, and per bag with matching pocketbook. Her triplets march in behind her, all dressed in brown leather coats with match Fendi bags. Seeing no one just yet, Jess brings her girls into the hotel restaurant and orders one of each item on menu.

The next to arrive is Nicole DiGiusto, also off the night shift at Barry-Bullens Donuts where she so elegantly and ficiently fills the donuts with gourmet preserves. After graduating from Springfield College with honors Nicole fo herself pining for the old days when she used to fill donuts for her aunt at Dunkin's. She begged Jessica and Donald a job. Jessica, deciding that she would never have gotten to where she was if it hadn't been for Nicole's frequent ride work, consented and happily handed over one of the prized Barry-Bullens rubber aprons. Nicole finds Jessica and triplets in the restaurant working their way through the mountain of food.

As soon as Nicole and Jessica greet each other, Jaime Fraioli shows up with a mysterious package under one arm a huge framed picture of Rob Gordon under the other. Upon being asked, Jaime admits to not being able to leave t apartment without Rob's life-sized face under her arm. After graduating from St. Anselm's with a degree in educati Jaime took over Mrs. Poole's position after Mrs. Zimmerman decided that she didn't like chasing people for ess Jaime restructured the English department single-handedly in a week. Jaime and Rob got married in 1999 and have had children yet.

Gail Lorandeau and Jessica MacDonald show up together straight from Band practice. Their band, The Glow Weeds, hit big time five years age when Jessica made the six o'clock national news after suffering a serious concuss after a death-defying stage dive. Gail plays the organ and provides the lead vocals and Jessica plays lead guitar. The other male band members fluctuate, but all look basically the same — tall, well-built, with long hair. Jessica and share an apartment with Gail's parents, who refused to let her move out without them, and Honey-Dog. Jessica's sm petting zoo, including six frogs, a newt, and a small chihuahua, resides in the small bathtub just off the microsc kitchen. They quickly find the Woodward group gathering in the restaurant.

Next to arrive is Melissa Miceli with her fluffy white show cat trotting triumphantly behind her, sporting the b ribbon she won in the National Obedience Trained Cat Show. "Hi everyone! Look at Allie! Isn't she gorgeous?" A she convinces everyone that graduating with a degree in Feline Psychology really had been a good choice, Meliss asked what her new husband's name is. "Jim! NO! Steven. How could I forget?" Since graduating from college, Mel has gone through seven and a half husbands (one was shorter than she was!). She sits down with the rest of the gr and begins to reminisce about Senior Room fights.

Melanie Morano slips in so quietly that no one even notices. It's only when she flashes her silver smile that any notices that she's arrived. Melanie got her braces off in time for graduation, but misunderstood the orthodontist's structions to wear her retainers. Mel thought he said to wear her CONTAINERS and spent a year wearing Tupperw bowls and cookie jars around her neck and on her head. She had to get braces for an extra five years because when was playing in a college basketball game, one of the containers slipped down over her eyes and she knocked all teeth out on the shoulder of a former Montrose player named Judy. However, everyone compliments Melanie on looks when her mouth is closed. She takes out a salad from a large paper bag and begins munching.

Jill Watts finally arrives, apologizing that someone had smashed her personal mirror at her night club the night fore, and she had to get it fixed before she could concentrate on anything else. Her dance club, deftly named J Nightclub, was soaring up the charts as the most popular place to hang out in Halifax. After finishing her senior yea Yale, Jill decided to go back to Woodward and finish her missing four weeks just for fun, and actually learned a Geometry theorems that she hadn't absorbed at Yale. Jill starts laughing when someone asks her what the mascot of club is, and says, "Well, of course it's Gangsta Ghost. Where would I be without him?

She is interrupted when Hye Yeun is driven to the table in a cab, even though her apartment is just next door. App ently she was running late from her shopping spree and tried her best to arrive on time.

Everyone talks for about an hour when Jessica Barry finally asks the inevitable question: "Who put this meeting gether and why are we here?"

Jaime flashes a cheshire grin and exclaims, "I am SO excited!! I can't hold it in any longer! I invited you all becau have a huge surprise! After paying of my $100,000 college debt, I decided to have a clean-a-thon at the Park Street T tion to raise the $50,000 we owed Josten's for the missed deadlines! They were so excited to finally get the payment, t gold-plated a copy for each one us!"

AND SO THE CLASS OF 1994 LIVED HAPPILY EVER AFTER. (THE YEARBOOK WAS FINISHED, ANYWAYS

Basketball

Despite the loss of seven original players and a coach of three years, the basketball team has fared very well. Our season started out strong with two wins vs. Chapel Hill and Brimer and May. Christmas vacation, snowy days, and loss of players brought the team spirit and enthusiasm down and we suffered many close losses. So far, four games have been canceled as a result of snow, and two have not been rescheduled. Players that have remained have been practicing and working hard to hopefully qualify for the tournament. Congratulations to captains Jessica MacDonald and Melanie Morano for keeping up the spirits of other players. They include: Eryne Flanagan, Sara Gordon, Faith Raimondi, Verna Buckley, Sara Peek, Tramaine Weekes, and Liz Rexford. Keep up the good work!

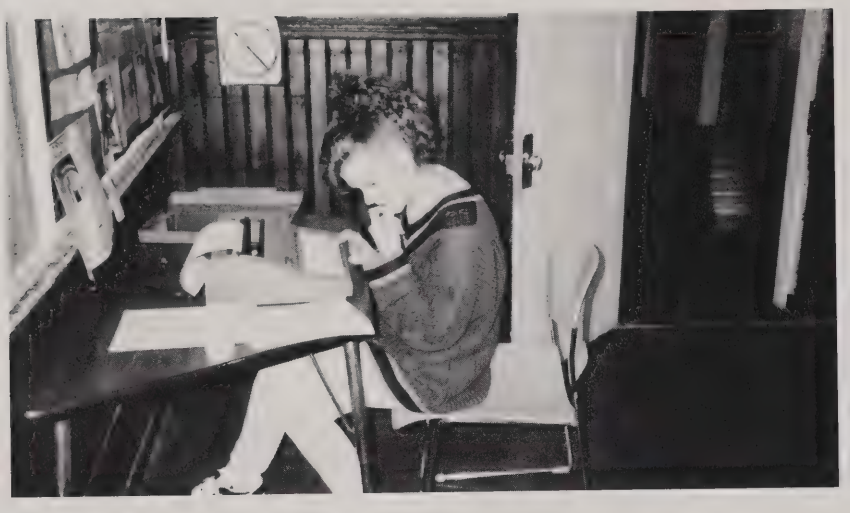
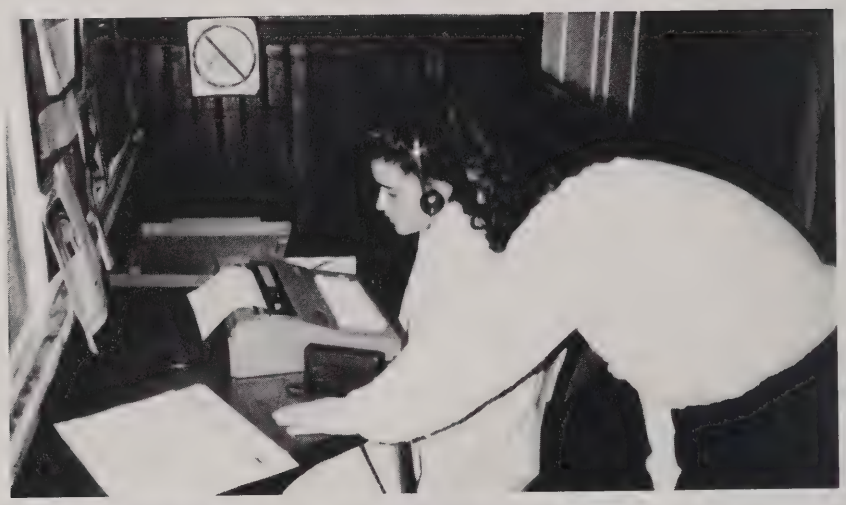
Yearbook Staff



This year's senior class has worked extremely hard to put together the year book in this centennial year. Jaime Fraioli and Melissa Meceli were the editors. Nicole DiGiusto was the business editor, and Gail Lorandeau, the art editor. The rest of the class worked as the assistant editors. It was a class effort and with everyone's help it has been a complete success.



When we entered the sixth grade as the Class of 1994, our class was greeted by the smiling, friendly face of Mrs. Jane Johnston. Mrs. Johnston turned out to be the Woodward art teacher, and a dear friend to all of us. She is a very talented woman, and her contributions to Woodward have been immeasurable. Mrs. Johnston is a very open-minded person who encouraged artistic liberty in her classes. She was really an inspiring woman, not only for her art, but also for her capabilities in helping her students. It was a sad day when Mrs. Johnston told us she would not be returning to Woodward for our last year. We want her to know that she holds a special place in our hearts, and we will always have fond memories of her days at Woodward with us.
